

The past, present and future of workplace inclusion

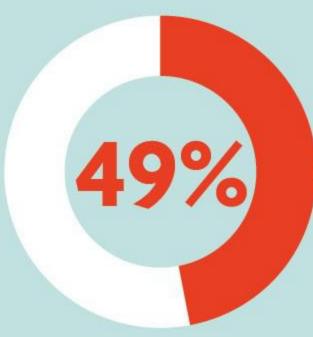

In March 2021, Inclusive Employers ran a 10 Years of Inclusion survey to understand the past, present and future of workplace inclusion. Our findings highlight how far we've come and what's next for inclusion; while there is still a long way to go for I&D, our collective achievements are symbolic of a growing shift towards happier and more successful inclusive workforces.

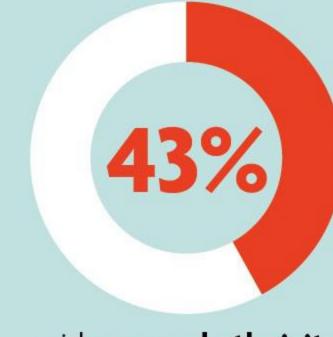

In 2011, I&D was non-existent or minimal in 81% of organisations

and sex at the top of the agenda.

said disability was on their I&D agenda

said race and ethnicity was on their I&D agenda

said sex was on their I&D agenda

100% of people surveyed said their organisations now have some I&D initiatives in place.

In 2021, I&D has grown dramatically in scale and scope. While disability, race and ethnicity, and sex are still high on the agenda, we can see growth in other strands of inclusion and diversity, including sexual orientation and mental health.

2011

2021

At present, which of these strands are on your I&D agenda?

Looking back 10 years, which of these strands were on your I&D agenda? 42.9% 84.9% Race/ethnicity 49% Disability 80.7% 28.6% Sexual orientation 79.0% Mental health 10.2% 78.2% 38.8% 76.5% Sex 10.2% Gender identity 68.9% Pregnancy 34.7% 63.9% and maternity Neurodiversity 2% 55.5% 22.4% 52.9% Age 29.6% Religion and belief 50.4% 7.1% Carers 41.2% Mental health, gender identity, Social mobility 3.1% 38.7% neurodiversity, carers and Marriage and 11.2% 34.5% social mobility are newer civil partnership

People spend 40+ hours a week at work. If a workplace is cultivating and supporting D&I, this will leak into people's individual values and practices and get people on board.

86% said that I&D work by employers is having a positive impact on the wider world.

The effect of some movements, such as

of the bigger

By starting the conversation with senior leaders, it has a visible impact on their thought process, and they are consciously thinking about how they can be more inclusive in their actions.

26%

cited discomfort of managers

and resistance from company

leaders as barriers to positive

I&D change.

51% said Covid has accelerated their

Black Lives Matter, has also accelerated the rate of change. 63% priorities for organisations.

organisation's I&D progress. 98% impacted most by the pandemic.

said that employees'

mental health has been

impact in the workplace in the next ten years.

of those surveyed expect

I&D to have a positive

is easier to do in workplaces than other environments.

The continued focus on this agenda can only drive future positive change.

Changing people's thinking and sharing new perspectives

how they inform and educate their children. The next generation will be a reflection of what we do now.

Making diversity and inclusion affect parents/carers and then the norm in workplaces will

Ten years from now, I&D in the workplace will be...

... fair and equal for

will be no requirement for a person or department to drive it. ... something every employee and leader has

integrated that there

... so completely

everyone, a place where you can bring your whole self to work and are judged solely on your actions and nothing else.

... a part of general at the forefront of their policy and seen to be essential to the minds in every decision and action they take. success of a business.

To find out more about our 10 Years of Inclusion survey and Inclusive Employers, visit www.inclusiveemployers.co.uk